

Have a Say in Your Future Health Care

through Koda Health's Advance Care Planning Program.

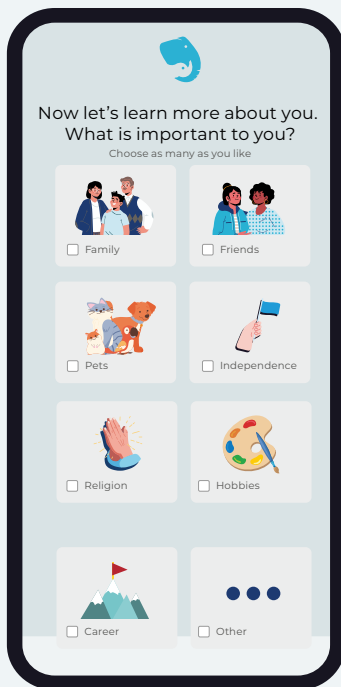

What is Advance Care Planning (ACP)?

Advance Care Planning (ACP) is a process that helps you plan for future medical care in case you become unable to make decisions for yourself. The goal is to ensure that your health care decisions are known and respected, even if you cannot communicate them.

Koda's ACP Program makes this process simple:

1. Learn about your care options through educational videos and content.
2. Create your Plan by making decisions about these options.
3. Sign your Plan containing forms like a Living Will and Medical Power of Attorney.
4. Share and Discuss your Plan with your doctor and those who care about you.

Frequently Asked Questions

Is this the same as my will?

An Advance Care Plan is a document that functions while you are still living. It captures the type of medical care you want if you're unable to make medical decisions for yourself.

A Will (or Last Will and Testament) is a document that functions after your death and instructs how you wish to distribute your money, possessions and property.

Why should I complete this?

Completing an Advance Care Plan ensures your health care decisions are known and respected if you can't communicate them yourself. It provides clear guidance to your care team and those who care about you on your preferences.

Are these legal documents?

Yes. Koda produces state-specific Advance Directives that meet legal requirements for all 50 states. They support you through the proper signing process for your state, whether that's notarization, witnessing, or digital signing.

Do I need a lawyer for this?

Our program produces state-specific legal documents without needing a lawyer.

I already filled out something like this before, do I really need to do this?

Koda provides a more detailed plan than most traditional plans. You'll have a complete, digital Advance Care Plan that you can take anywhere in the state.

My family knows what I want, why should I complete this?

Putting your health care preferences in writing helps to ensure that your decisions will be honored by your doctors and those who care about you.

Can I make changes after I sign?

Absolutely. You can log in to Koda anytime to update your plan as your health or preferences change.

How much does this cost?

No, this service is offered at no additional cost through Privia.
